About Me

I have worked within the AV/IT industry since 2006 where I have built up a knowledge of delivering and supporting new technology and software of AV/IT services both in education and commercial environments within Edinburgh and across the United Kingdom.

As a Learning Technology Support Officer. I provide support and advice to staff and students for technology enhanced learning tools provided by the University for learning and teaching activities. These tools are a varied set of systems that include virtual learning environments , online portfolios, assessment systems, multimedia, e-learning communication and collaboration tools.

I enjoy keeping active by hill walking and cycling so don't really mind the Scottish weather. I also like to travel abroad when I can to experiencing new cultures and activities.
