

product sketches—week3

This week I tried to draw object quickly and daily. These five object was drew in five days and each of them have spent less than five minutes. All the products is been used in my daily life. Some of the, are on my desk. Some are in the bathroom and some are used outdoors.

---

Orthographic Projection (composition 5)–week2

Drawing Challenge–week2

While setting a voice call in Microsoft soft teams and talking to my classmates. I roughly sketched down several products and some ideas on a piece of a4paper. All the products were being used in my daily life, it includes a cup, rubber, a tape, a chair, light, perfume and a hair drier. The figure on the right bottom of the paper is a sculpture made by the artist–NIKI which quickly flash in to my mind.

---

Rectilinear volumes–week2

The activities for this week is make cuboids with cardboard. This exercise is quit hard for me at first because cardboard was not easy to cut and fold. After sticking the edges together to form the cuboids, I started to play around with them. Turning the dominant shape around and see how it look like in different perspectives are interesting.

---

Product sketching–week 1

This ILA is about roughly sketching in the daily life. I really like the idea of quick drawing of objects around me or in my bag. The objects I chose include a pen, my phone and a key, EarPods and a lipstick which are all necessity. I used pencil to shadow the dark area and highlights the drawing with rubber. The I used paper to rub the boundary line and the outline of each object to made them looks more realistic.

---

Primitives 3D and 2D–week1

This is an activity about finding shapes all over the world. This is quit fun for me because I found the process while looking and searching for shapes while I walking driving or biking is really interesting. In the end I gathered all the photos together and separate them in to different categories ie.3D or 2D. I was shocked by the large amount of picture that I found, and those photographs has been tracked while I traveled around the world. This page combined with the photographs full with memories to me.

---

100 roughly straight lines
that form my name-week1

