

Ahmed Fasfous

My name is Ahmed Fasfous, I am an Associate Professor of Clinical Psychology at the University of Bethlehem (Palestine), a Clinical Neuropsychologist at Al-Mizan Hospital – Hebron (Palestine), and an associate researcher at Mind, Brain and Behavior Research Center at the University of Granada (Spain) where I conduct research and clinical work on cultural neuropsychology and neurodevelopment. My research interests focus on neuropsychological development, trauma and mental health problems, psychological testing, and cross cultural neuropsychology. I have participated in different national (Palestine) and international projects (Spain, Morocco, and Ecuador) focused on neurodevelopmental problems among children.